DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The present town of Nottingham has a few of the original buildings standing today. There is a shcool, with a gable facade and a small entrance porch, both with "A" roofs. The old store is a two story, frame building with a gable and three bay facade. At one end is a lower section with a semi-hipped roof. Near the river the McCubbin House is a double, two story house with a small central chimney; each section has a three bay facade with a central doorway and flanking 2/2 double hung sash windows. West of it is a one story, frame building with a four bay facade; the west bay is an addition and the present internal chimney was external at one time. The Prather house is two stories, with a five bay facade; the central doorway has sidelights and the windows are 6/6 double hung sash with a moulding above the lintels. At either end there are semi-external chimneys. A water tower, north of the house, is now connected by a passageway. The Dr. Waring House is a two story, frame building now covered with shingles. It has a two bay (river) facade with the doorway in the north bay. The one story north wing has a two bay facade and an internal chimney on the north end. A small kitchen with internal stove flue stands south of the house.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Nottingham was once a port on the Patuxent River. During the eighteenth century, ships from Great Britain could dock there. In the nineteenth century, river boats ran from Nottingham to Baltimore City. There were several wharves and warehouses at one time, as well as several stores.
